Station 6 | VMP8

Why is there a path and orientation network on the campus?

- The path and orientation network makes it easier for people who rely on a wheelchair to use the campus as the paths are smooth.
- Three ramps are integrated into the path and orientation network so that people do not have to take long detours.
- People without vision or with impaired vision can then navigate the paths with a white cane or their feet. At each intersection, curve, and ramp, as well as in front of each entrance, there is a metal plate embedded in the ground to indicate that the path is changing direction.
- This is why you should not lock your bike to handrails on these paths.

Station 7 | Pferdestall AP1

Information on the building

“AP” stands for Allende-Platz, named after Salvador Allende (former Chilean president, 1908–1973.)

- The Department of Social Sciences, which is in the Faculty of Business, Economics and Social Sciences, is located here. This department offers degree programs in sociology, political science, journalism and mass communication, and international criminology.
- The library is located on the third and fourth floors. Lockers for bags, jackets, and the like are in the foyer.
- 4 group study rooms can be booked online on the department’s website.
- There are also gender-neutral restrooms.
- The T-Stube is located on the first floor and is also a student-run café.
